Trinity Restoration Announces “official” ground breaking on new 25,611 square foot paint, body and mechanical facility October 13th, 2006 in Tulsa, Oklahoma

New Facility will be the largest in Tulsa Area

Tulsa, Oklahoma, September 25th, 2006 – Today Trinity Restoration, Tulsa’s premier collision repair and restoration services provider since 1987, announced an “official” ground breaking ceremony for their new 25,611 square foot paint, body and mechanical facility. The ceremony will be held at 11 a.m. on Friday, October 13th at the construction site located on 98th Street South just East of Memorial Drive. Company executives, business partners, customers, employees and local officials such as Tulsa Mayor, Kathy Taylor are expected to attend. Trinity invites you to join their guests at the ceremony.

The new facility will be the fourth building in Trinity’s Tulsa operation and offer customers paint, body and for the first time full mechanical services. When completed this building will be Tulsa’s largest paint, body and mechanical facility with over 25,000 square feet located on 2.5 acres giving it the largest parking access of its type in this area as well. The facility will include the latest state-of-the-art paint, body and mechanical equipment and a car dealership style showroom with enough space to display several restored classic automobiles and motorcycles.

Tulsa’s own David Miller, owner of Trinity Restoration stated that, “Trinity Restoration currently has 15 employees in Tulsa and we expect to more than double that number once the new building opens in March, 2007. We will be investing roughly $3 Million in the new location by the time it’s all said and done and we expect generate $6 Million in gross yearly sales. This is a really exciting time for us as a business. My wife, Heather and I were both born and raised in Tulsa and we resisted the urge to relocate to one of the surrounding communities like Bixby or Jenks and I’m so glad we did. We are proud to do our small part to help grow Tulsa and its business community.

Our new location at 98th and Memorial will allow us expand our collision repair services for newer vehicles while adding full mechanical service in-house and at the same time opening up space in our 46th and Memorial locations for our classic car restorations. This additional space will be crucial to both Trinity divisions but especially the restoration side if and when our national restoration television series takes off. If the TV show takes off, it will be weekly and that means a bunch more restoration work and that takes space, lots of it. So we get more space all the way around and add the ability to better serve our customers with full mechanical services, which is great because they are always asking us to do more and more things to their cars. We want to be a one-stop shop for our loyal customers who have been coming to us for years.”

The new facility will open in early 2007, which is Trinity’s 20th year in business. It was designed by Brad Lechtenberger and Tom Daman and will be built by Rupe Construction of Tulsa.
